INTRODUCTION

Many people are familiar with their own astrological Zodiac Sign because Sun Sign astrology is popular in today's culture. However, astrology is a complicated tradition and there is much more to the chart than just the Zodiac Sign where the Sun resides. The Earth's Moon, for example, is a powerful factor to help a person gain greater understanding of a person's nature, and so are the planets from Mercury out to Pluto. All of these bodies, working through Zodiacal Signs, residing in sections of the sky called Houses, and interacting with each other via angular relationships known as Aspects, create a birth chart which astrologers can interpret.

In 1977 another body was added to the astrologer's toolbox. Given the name Chiron (after the mythological Centaur) by its discoverer, this minor planet adds another dimension to a person's chart. It reveals a person's wounds, how to heal those that can be healed, and how to accept those that cannot. By exploring Chiron in a person's chart, the path to healing and becoming psychologically well is highlighted. Doors to a larger perspective are revealed, and lessons are learned which enable you to teach others what you have discovered.

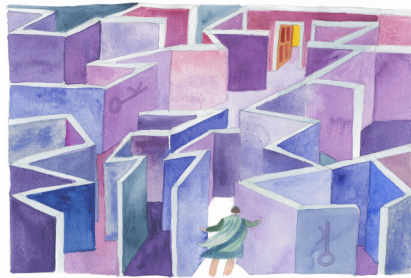

The symbol for Chiron looks like a key. This is appropriate because Chiron is the key to many things including to a new way of looking at things, to rising above problems and pain, to redemption if others have been hurt, healing and forgiveness, finding a sense of belonging and to emotional truth, to name a few.

Chiron in the Chart, and therefore this report, shows us where we are most vulnerable to hurts, what will ultimately comfort us, how to assimilate our pain, what we feel passionately about, our emotional truth and how to share this truth with others. Chiron shows the beauty in each person's journey towards emotional truth and self-acceptance. The path may be painful but the journey is ultimately rewarding.

When exploring Chiron interpretations, please bear in mind that, inevitably, every chart will contain some apparent contradictory influences, but this is because human beings themselves can have conflicting thoughts, emotions, and desires active at the same time. Usually, an astrologer will synthesize these apparent contradictions in order to present a cohesive and meaningful interpretation of the dilemmas of the chart.

Please also be aware of the fact that each person may possess both positive and negative influences arising from Chiron in their chart, and therefore in their lives. The challenge is to accept and overcome the negative influences, so that you can successfully focus on manifesting the positive traits or qualities that are inherent within their own personal chart. This report outlines the cosmic influences to better enable a person to work towards achieving wholeness within one's self. Advice given within this report is meant to encourage the individual to accept responsibility for his or her own actions during a lifetime. Ultimately, the decision rests with each individual.

DOORWAYS TO UNDERSTANDING

Healing takes courage, and we all have courage, even if we have to dig a little to find it.
Tori Amos.

Chiron moves through the Zodiac Signs in an erratic manner and therefore it can reside in one Sign for an extended period of time and in others for a shorter period. Nevertheless it does dwell in a Zodiac Sign for some time and this means that you are likely to share your Chiron Sign with your peers. Positively this can mean that you have empathy with your peers. The more that you understand the nature of Chiron in your Zodiac Sign the more that you can understand how to express yourself in your peer groups. There is much truth that can be gained from understanding Chiron's Sign at the time of your birth. You can learn where you are most vulnerable to hurts, what can be of comfort, how to assimilate any hurt feelings and how to share this truth with others. The Sign can be the key to understanding opening doorways to connect with others.

Chiron is in Taurus

With Chiron in the Zodiac Sign of Taurus you grew up with a special focus, a longing for a set of values that may be permanent. Values change through time and culture, but you have a personal imperative to search for values that will remain when everything around you changes. All typical Taurean things, such as possessions and security, are important, but you have unique viewpoints on them compared to most other people.

To you, money is a means to an end; possessions are only worth keeping if they have something that makes them truly useful or of value in some way; security needs to be real, not just superficial. You feel that nothing must stop you from acquiring what you feel you need to survive. It is also possible that you had to take on the responsibility of being the breadwinner at a young age. This gives you an appreciation of the value of material security and the need to earn an income.

Your life may be tinged with an undercurrent of fear about being without; a feeling that your needs may have been neglected, especially material needs. This manifests as a desire to acquire wealth (for fear of being poor), or to eat way too much (for fear of being unfulfilled, under-nourished). You could find your sense of self-worth tied in to what you have materially.

Many lessons come to you about what is of value, and as you heal, you become less concerned with the material and more concerned with values that will last long after the material tarnishes or is lost.

As you evolve you develop a great deal of concern for the needy. You feel that no one should be deprived of the necessities of life, and no one should become wealthy at the expense of others. If you do not as yet feel this way, it is because you are still working out problems that will eventually lead you to this attitude.

Because you develop the ability to see the true value in things, not just the superficial value, you can become quite innovative in solving problems in the material world, for yourself, and for other people.

Your way forward is through learning how to share resources with others; shared bank accounts, for example, as well as the power that comes from working with others. You need to work with others on various levels, and help them to use their resources wisely, in order to be at your best in building those things which you most value in your own life. And the more you are able to clearly see that some things are yours, some are shared, and some belong to other people (mine, ours, yours), the more down-to-earth you become.

WHERE IT BEGAN

The doctor is effective only when he himself is affected. Only the wounded physician heals.
Carl Jung.

The twelve divisions of the sky, known to astrologers as Houses, represent twelve areas of life, and the House where Chiron is placed indicates the circumstances affecting your vulnerability. The life matters that are shaped by this vulnerability give clues as to the direction you must take to begin the hero's journey towards healing.

Astrologers state that Saturn denotes basic lessons in life in the House it resides in. Where Chiron is placed in a House describes how you will discover the lessons you need to learn. The affairs of Chiron's House have an element of 'now' to them; when a problem arises here the person cannot wait until later to resolve it and nothing must stand in their way when they are trying to overcome obstacles here. The House in which Chiron is placed is where the greatest focus for healing and becoming whole lies. By using the positive energy as described by Chiron's House position can help heal any problems that may be inherent in the horoscope.

Chiron can act like a doorway to the basic energy force of the House itself, enabling a person to tap the particular power inherent in the House under review, and use it almost without limit or restriction. In fact, through Chiron's House position a person can open doors to whole other realms, once opened, those doors can never be closed again.

Chiron is in the 5th House

This placement can be connected with unique artistry and creativity, which is expressed in a sensitive and soulful manner. You are one of a kind. You do not want your creativity to be influenced by anyone else. You tend to be uninhibited and yet also sensitive. There is frequently an 'anything goes' attitude in the way you express yourself. No rules govern your creativity, and your style is totally your own. You are the type of person who will have a certain something that lives on after you have passed on. There is something so totally unique about you that people know whom you are talking about when someone mentions this quality, mannerism or creation of yours.

It is your inner child which carries your deepest wounds. One, or both, of your parents had low self-esteem. Perhaps they did not truly value themselves. Growing up, you had to deal with this energy, as their low self-worth expressed itself in the way they treated you. In one way or another, you picked up the message that you also were worth very little (which hurt you deeply). The child within you was crippled, unable to express itself uninhibitedly and it is from the inner child that one's creativity comes. Thus, you grew up with an inner child very much wanting to express itself, yet it was buried deep within.

As a result, you have major lessons to learn about nurturing this inner child, and loving yourself. And as you grow up, these lessons can come through the children that you are in contact with. Should you have children of your own then there will be something unique about them which brings these lessons home. It may be that they have unique physical issues which demand that you devote more time to them than you planned, or unique personality issues. In one way or another, you will have to face again the pains you experienced growing up, and be called on to show the love and nurturing to the children in your life that you did not experience as a child. These lessons will change your whole lifestyle, and as you heal, you will also give yourself the right to express yourself, and your creativity will blossom.

There may also be major lessons to be learned through lovers, and there will be problems until you learn to truly love that inner child. Basically, you cannot give of yourself to another until you can do so without reservation. Your low self-esteem ties up all of that loving energy that needs to be shared in a relationship. So you will learn how to love yourself more through interacting with lovers.

The major key with your wounds, in addition to learning to love your inner child, is to learn to forgive those who hurt your younger self. Only by forgiving can you release yourself from all that binds you.

This position often creates the opportunity to add a whole new career after pursuing one career for many years, yet frequently keep the old one as well. You have a strong competitive streak, lots of enthusiasm for your field, and if you need to train for something you train hard. Many people with this position are known for their sharp or caustic wit. There is often a strong bent towards trying to create a totally realistic style. You are one of the true defenders of self-expression and freedom of thought.

CONQUERING DRAGONS

A healer's power stems not from any special ability, but from maintaining the courage and awareness to embody and express the universal healing power that every human being naturally possesses.

Eric Micha'el Leventhal.

Planets interact based on angular relationships which astrologers call 'Aspects'. These Aspects tell a story of their own. Chiron's Aspects show a person the specific cause of any wounding, and where they must turn on the path to becoming whole, to face and defeat the inner dragons that are blocking the healing path.

Chiron is Conjunct Venus

You have a great deal of love which comes spontaneously from you, which you can use as a real healing influence, giving most to those most in need. You have so much love, and caring, to give; others may think you give way too much in a relationship and don't think enough about yourself. To some extent this is true, because no matter how giving you are you never feel it is enough.

But the flip side is that you are extremely vulnerable to being easily hurt, your love is given without strings or expectations, and perhaps without any defences at all. It is, potentially, a very idealistic position. To quote from a popular song, 'The world was not made for one as beautiful as you.' If the aspect expresses itself this way, it is a painful lesson you gradually learn about what the world is like, so that you can deal with situations realistically, and still give out love.

It is in what you truly value, especially in yourself. your self-worth, and where you are deeply wounded. Perhaps you were made to feel worthless as a child, or that other people (or things) were more important than you; or perhaps you were made to feel that you should not focus on yourself at all, that it was wrong to do so. Along with this comes a deep, perhaps intense, fear of rejection, which colours the type of people you relate with, and your relationships with them.

In any event, it is a major lesson for you to see that you are valuable, that you have a purpose. Perhaps you might wish to put these words on the wall so you can see them every day: 'God doesn't make junk'. Until you learn to value yourself, however, you may find yourself in abusive relationships, or co-dependent, or placing your partner on a pedestal.

Another expression of this energy is a life quest for what is real, valuable, and truly worthwhile in life, a quest for true beauty and value. This can lead you to disregard society's values, or to try to select what is worthwhile out of all the fake values around. As you do this you may acquire a set of personal values that does not quite fit with those of other people. Depending on the rest of the chart, you may keep this a secret, or be very open about it. The special personal values are there, no matter whether hidden or displayed.

You also have a desire to understand what makes the real world tick; the laws governing material things. It is an excellent aspect for a scientist, for it seems that you are always trying to uncover as much about what things are truly worth as you can.

Chiron is Opposite Uranus

You part of a large group of people, a generation of individuals born between 1952 and 1989, and you were all shaped by the changes that were going on around you. For example, there was an accelerated pace of scientific advancement during the second half of the Twentieth Century. And part of the problem is that science is making discoveries faster than they can be integrated into society; even faster than proper safeguards can be devised for our protection from side effects and from the discoveries themselves.

This same 'vibration' is, in many ways, a part of your nature. There is a thirst for the new, for discovery, for experiences, that often outweighs the taking of any precautions. Others dare not try to curtail your freedom, the consequences may not be pleasant. The urge for independence can be so strong that it can create difficulties in relationships. The only relationships you can have that truly last is one where each person is given a lot of space to be themselves, and in truth, it is difficult to find someone sufficiently secure to give a partner that much freedom. It does give a real spirit, though.

The wound of the whole generation, though, can be summed up in the words, 'fallen heroes'. For thousands of years, people had heroes to worship, people to look up to as almost godlike. But this generation has seen all of its heroes fall, or show very unheroic sides, or in one way or another, prove they are just like everyone else. As a result, your generation has had a wound that each person must learn to heal in his/her own way, but the lesson is to become one's own hero to become the person you would like to look up to and respect.

Chiron is Quincunx Neptune

No one alive today was born with Neptune Quincunx Chiron.

CONCLUSION

I always say a tremendous amount of healing is in your own hands.
Hayley Mills.

This report may give rise to some strong emotions. It may even stir up long-forgotten memories and colour your dream life as you sleep. The purpose is to help you learn and as you learn the lessons of Chiron then you see the world in new ways, follow your own unique path, and discover doors opening, doors that you did not even realize were there. It is the guide to your personal quest.

In mythology, the Centaur Chiron was a teacher. He urged his pupils to gain wisdom and understanding. When you understand Chiron in your Chart then you learn, grow, and see the world around you from a larger perspective, ready to share the wisdom you have acquired to help others expand their horizons. You can be a teacher, a mentor, a foster parent. You can help others to find the bridges to move from the past into the future.

Chiron was also the father of the healing arts. As you learn Chiron's lessons in life you find your own path to wholeness. With your clearer perspective you can take what you have learned through experience to help heal others, helping guide them on their path to wholeness.

As you heal, Chiron gives you what are perhaps the three greatest gifts anyone could ask for. To paraphrase the Serenity Prayer, you have the gift of being able to be at peace with the things you cannot change; the gift of courage to change what can be changed; and the gift of wisdom to tell one from the other.

About the Author: The text in this report has been written by astrologer Zane B Stein. Zane's ground-breaking book, "Essence and Application: A View from Chiron", is one of the most widely read texts on the subject. He is currently seeking to unravel the meaning of other Centaurean bodies, trans-Neptunians, and some of the more unique asteroids.

In typical Gemini fashion, Zane has been active in a number of different careers. He has been involved with astrology for more than 40 years. He has also worked as an IT Technical Support Specialist for the past 13 years, helping to solve software, hardware and internet problems. Zane has worked as a salesman, designed websites, has a degree in hypnosis and has interviewed a number of noted show business personalities for newspaper articles. Originally from the United States, he now has made Western Australia his new home, where he has a private astrological practice. He and his astrologer wife Lynette have started an astrological school in their home in Spearwood. Zane can be reached at Mr.Chiron@zanestein.com or 0452 524 387.
